Charger Collective Commitments: CULTURE

We commit to developing, nurturing and modeling purposeful relationships characterized by respect and kindness with students, parents, and fellow educators.

We commit to a culture of high expectations with consistent messages to students.

We commit to making decisions based on what is best for kids and not for the comfort of the adults.

We commit to behaving in a manner that clearly communicates that all students and educators in our school matter.

We commit to modeling and teaching students the importance of mindfulness as part of their educational experience.

We commit to being innovative and creative in our approach to student learning and professional practice.

We commit to a culture of true collaboration that encourages the healthy exchange of new ideas and the sharing of effective practices for the betterment of every student.

We commit to being innovative and creative in our approach to student learning and professional practice.

We commit to on-going professional learning as an essential component of our own continued growth.

We commit to assuming collective responsibility for "our" students through facilitating advanced learning opportunities and targeted, school-wide, systematic support for students who require it.
